Once upon a time there were two ants, a princess, a giant and a robber dog. The ants' names are Tulip and Buttercup. They liked to travel even though they are still young. The first place they wanted to go was to Egypt. They are going to leave in two weeks. Two weeks have already been. They are leaving today. They've already packed their leaves. They are on their way to Egypt. It will take them at least a day and a night. The seats are very tiny. Their final place in Egypt was all that time. They are shown to their hotel where they unpack their leaves. The giant crushes everything he sees. Luckily, he didn't see the ants' hotel. The robber dog could sniff everything that was the problem. He could even sniff ants. The ants were in danger. The princess was the only one who was on the goodies team. She kept them occupied. The problem was solved after a while. They all became friends again.

Grade Commentary

Pat demonstrates basic knowledge and understanding of the structure and features of a narrative. The writing is not sequential, and there is a lack of description and character development. The sentence structure is simple, with limited evidence of punctuation or paragraphing.

Pat's response demonstrates characteristics of work typically produced by a student performing at a grade D standard.
